

Caesāriōn, fīlius Caesaris et Cleopatrae

DECLENSION
of nummus, —ī (m.) "coin"

nummus Iūlii Caesaris

SINGULAR

NOMINATIVE: subject	nummus	nummus est bonus.	The coin is good.
GENITIVE: possession	nummī	faciēs nummī est laeta.	The face of the coin is happy.
DATIVE: indirect object	nummō	fīlius vocabula nummō dicit.	The son says words to the coin .
ACCUSATIVE: direct object	nummum	fīlius nummum videt.	The son sees the coin .
ABLATIVE: obj. of in , etc.	nummō	facies patris in nummō est.	The face of the father is on the coin .
VOCATIVE: direct address	numme	fīlius vocat, "ō numme! "	The son calls, "Oh coin! "

PLURAL

NOMINATIVE: subject	nummī	nummī sunt bonī.	The coins are good.
GENITIVE: possession	nummōrum	faciēs nummōrum sunt laetae.	The faces of the coins are happy.
DATIVE: indirect object	nummīs	fīlius vocabula nummīs dicit.	The son says words to the coins .
ACCUSATIVE: direct object	nummōs	fīlius nummōs videt.	The son sees the coins .
ABLATIVE: obj. of in , etc.	nummīs	facies patris in nummīs est.	The face of the father is on the coins .
VOCATIVE: direct address	nummī	fīlius vocat, "ō nummī! "	The son calls, "Oh coins! "